Investments for life

My father once told me something I would never forget. It was December 4th, my birthday! I just turned twelve. I knew my dad would be in the kitchen reading the morning paper, with the old brown radio softly playing behind him. My dad gave me a big warm happy birthday hug and made me a special cup of hot chocolate with extra whipped cream. It was my birthday! We were the early birds.

It was then my father would talk about "life", and make me think. He looked at me and said, "How old are you this morning?" "Twelve!" I said. "So do you think you are closer to being nine, or ninety-nine?" The question seemed too simple, but obvious to me, "Nine!" I answered. "Ahh..." my father said, "No sweetheart, you are closer to ninety-nine than nine. In life you can never go back, only forward." I never forgot about "life", and make me think. "How old are you this morning?" you are closer to being nine, or seemed too simple, but obvious to my father said, "No sweetheart, than nine. In life you can never go my fathers words.

However old you are today, or how ever young your children are, you will just get older, and the children will just get bigger Change never stops.

Do you look back at old photographs and wonder where the time has gone?

Relationship photography is the heart-beat to my passion for photography. As you plan this New Year's investment and goals for the future, consider making an investment into a moment... THIS MOMENT, a time period of life you will never have again. Remember, you can never go back.
